CLIMATE CHANGE poses enormous challenges to our living environment. The world's delta and coastal areas are particularly vulnerable to these changes. Their progressive ideas, innovation, and groundbreaking research in adapting to climate change have brought California and the Netherlands together to form a new alliance.

ON MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (BCDC) and a consortium of leading Dutch researchers and consultants – key members of the Delta Alliance – will host a symposium on climate change adaptation. At this event, the results of a joint study and adaptation measures for shoreline development around San Francisco Bay will be presented, and new ideas for future cooperation in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta and San Francisco Bay of California and the Delta in the Netherlands will be explored.

PLEASE JOIN US for this day-long program to engage in the discussion and to hear more about:

- ✓ NEW INSIGHTS on the impact of sea level rise on San Francisco Bay
- ✓ INNOVATIVE and CREATIVE design solutions and adaptation measures from the Netherlands
- ✓ ALTERNATIVE institutional arrangements for dealing with climate change
- ✓ climate change adaptation STRATEGIES in California and the Netherlands
- ✓ IDEAS to advance the newly established alliance between California and the Netherlands
